

Faculty Interest and Capability Statement

Name: Peter A. Ngwafu PhD.

Email: peter.ngwafu@asurams.edu

Discipline: Political Science

Sub-discipline (s): Public Administration

Research Interests: Public Policy, Leadership, Organizational Behavior, International Relations, Human Resources Management, Diversity Management, Public Governance, African Politics, American Government and Politics.

Skills: Qualitative, Quantitative, and Applied research skills.

Research Summary (Current, performed in the past 5 years; 300 words or less):

1. U.S.& Georgia Government Textbook Used at ASU-from 2006-2013.Chapter on American Presidency

The chapter on the American Presidency examines the presidency as an institution, the sources of presidential power, and the environment in which those powers are exercised, roles of the president, institutional and personnel resources of the Presidency and the politics of presidential power.

2. How MPA programs with different missions and admission criteria van Structure Collaborative and Mutually Beneficial Institutional Arrangements Using Hybrid Projects to promote multicultural collaboration

This research, which was presented at the November 2014 annual Conference of the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs &Administration (NASPAA) Conference in Albuquerque, New Mexico, sought to examine the challenges faced by two MPA programs with different missions, admissions criteria and student demographics f as they attempt to establish collaborative and mutually beneficial institutional arrangements using hybrid projects so as to foster multicultural collaboration. (2014)

3. Budgeting in African Nations: The Case of Cameroon

This work is essentially a book chapter that examines Public Budgeting systems in African Nations with particular emphasis on Cameroon. It is currently being peer reviewed for possible publication by Taylor & Francis publishers (2015)

4. Government- Business Relations in Uganda. This research is also a book chapter that seeks to examine the nature of Government-Business Relations in Uganda. Once completed, it will be peer reviewed for publication.(2015)