About JSTOR

JSTOR is a collection of academic journals in various disciplines. JSTOR does not have the most recent publications. Journal issues are typically added to JSTOR 3 to 5 years after publication in what is referred to as a "moving wall".

There are multiple collections within JSTOR and James Pendergrast Memorial Library does not subscribe to all collections; consequently, a journal that is said to be in JSTOR may not be available in our version of JSTOR.

Access JSTOR by visiting www.jstor.org.
